SERB BISHOPS MISTREATED.
 Bulgarians Charged With Cruelty
 Them Many Hardships.
 WASHINGTON, June 26.—Mistreatment of Serbian bishops and clergy by Bulgarians was reported to-day by the Serbian Legation here. In a statement the Legation said:
 "The Serbian bishops and clergy are being treated in a brutal way in the Serbian provinces under Bulgarian occupation. The bishop of Serbie is interned in a Bulgarian Monastery. The director of the theological seminary in Uzice, Stevens Dimitrijevic, has been ordered with 120 of his pupils to go on foot all the way to Sofia and no news of them has since been received. The Bulgarians are enforcing their schismatic religion in Serbia and the Serbian clergy is being expelled from the country."

WILD HORSE GROWS WISE; HE MAY HAVE A DOG ACCOMPLICE

Reward Doubled for the Equine but He Fails to Show Up on His Accustomed Route.

The wild horse of Long Beach is still at large. His empty stable yawns for him and a score of lariat long for him; and the reward for him has been doubled. He kicks up his heels and the dirt of the sand dunes all the way from Point Lookout to the boardwalk and neighs merrily in defiance of sheriff's posse and cowboy coteries.

Last night the million dollar golf links were carefully guarded. This morning the grass was counted and not a single blade was missing. The bunkers were intact. The wild horse went without his daily golf ball last night and missed his morning's morning.

A clue to the whereabouts of the wandering equine was discovered by a detective to-day. Suspicion that he has an accomplice has been incubating in the minds of the deputy sheriffs for several days. They knew that there must be some reason for their inability to locate him. "Rags," the Irish terrier of Tom Dier, assistant postmaster of Long Beach, ticket agent, news agent, press agent and real estate agent. Tom is all this, not "Rags"—is the Sinn Féin under suspicion.

"Rags" is a knowing dog. He knows everything, always having his ear cocked and his weather eye open. He knows all about the wild horse and the plans about for his capture. Two deputy sheriffs were set to watch his movements, but he lost them in the sand dunes. It has become known that every time a posse set out for the wild horse of Long Beach, "Rags" has disappeared.

 It is recalled that the fierce rhinoceros has his hornbill. The hornbill is a little bird who sits on the horn of the rhinoceros. It may not be a hornbill, but it's a bird anyhow. In return for his transportation and keep, he guards the prehistoric-tipped rhinoceros of the tropics, while the big squash sleeps. At the first approach of danger, he twits a warning. The belief is becoming widespread in the horribles of the hiding wild horse.

The Sheriff has applied to the police for police hounds to trail "Rags," and the sailors of the nursing posse have been supplied by horse marines. The wild horse is becoming a nightmare at Long Beach and Point Lookout. It is thought "Rags" has been supplying not only tips to the roaming beast, but is providing food for him as well, since he has been shut out from the grazing grounds of the million dollar golf club.

Muscles abound near the beach, and "Rags" is known as a digger. The awful fear that the rhinoceros may become muscled-bound has induced the owner to raise the reward to fifty dollars. The fishermen at Jones' Inlet and the Reef near "Rags" as the pilot fish of the sea horse. Everybody on the beach talks of nothing else but the elusive wild horse, and the ladies on the boardwalk are knitting feedbags for him.

"If I could only see him," sighs his owner.
 "If we could only catch him," coo the cowboys.

"If we could only catch him," cry the guard at the golf links.

But the reward goes only for the return of the horse alive. The owner won't stand for bringing him in dead.

SECRET $3 COAL TALK IS REPORTED AT TRIAL

Also Price List Is Exhibited Which Boosted Lump Grade Almost 200 Per Cent.

Minutes of the secret meeting of West Virginia soft coal operators last Jan. 3 at the Waldorf-Astoria, when the alleged conspiracy to boost prices was formed, were put in evidence yesterday on the Government's trial of the so-called smokeless and bunker coal combinations.

Prosecutors Swacker and Stephenson contended that, though a deliberate agreement as to prices did not appear in the minutes, the Secretary later sent out a uniform price list, which applied to all the mines owned by more than fifty companies, and the operators also furnished the same quotations to sales agents here and abroad.

The price list shown in evidence advanced the price $1.75 to $2.15, so that "black" grade, for instance, which had been sold at $1.25 a ton, went up to $3, and lump and egg, formerly quoted at $1.60, jumped to $3.75.

According to one of the witnesses, W. R. J. Zimmerman of the Smokeless Coal Operators' Association, R. H. Gross, President of the White Oak Coal Company, got up at the Waldorf-Astoria confab and said he thought it was a reasonable charge $3 a ton net, at the mines. G. H. Caperton, President of the New River Coal Company, suggested $2.50, witnesses said, but later agreed to $3.

Letters were read to the jury showing that the operators privately cut each other's prices after the boost in order to grab trade. They also fought among themselves over coal cars, those who did not get cars advanced those who did.

BRIDGE LEAP TO DEATH.

Frederick Homolka, twenty-five, killed himself yesterday afternoon by jumping from the Queensboro Bridge into the west channel of the East River. His sister, Minnie Homolka of No. 421 East Seventieth Street, attributed his act to despondency over failure to obtain work. Homolka had been a coal passer.

Alex Granka of No. 208 East Fifty-eighth Street and John Cosack of No. 513 East Eighty-second Street, said they heard Homolka talking to himself and acting strangely as he started over the bridge. He reached the north walk, suddenly tore off his coat and leaped over the rail. A search of his coat revealed a State registration card. The body has not been found.

ANDREWS' GRAVE OPENED BEFORE POLICE ARRIVED

Defense Scores in Trial of Mrs. Gilligan for Alleged Poisoning.

HARTFORD, Conn., June 26.—When the body of Franklin R. Andrews, whom Mrs. Amy E. Archer-Gilligan is alleged to have poisoned, was exhumed in Cheshire, the night of May 2, 1916, the grave was opened by the cemetery sexton and the lid of the box had been removed when the State police grave diggers and Dr. Arthur J. Wolff, the State bacteriologist, arrived. This was reluctantly admitted at the trial of Mrs. Gilligan by the State's star witnesses, Capt. Robert T. Hurley.

Another fact drawn from the State's chief detective by the defense was that the organs removed at the autopsy were placed in glass fruit jars with removable screw tops, sealed only with adhesive plaster.

A feature of the day's doings was the introduction of a letter written to Prosecutor Alcorn by Mrs. Gilligan, over a year before her arrest, asking Mr. Alcorn to inspect the home in Windsor and help her quiet disagreeable rumors started by a newspaper reporter.

Two former inmates of the home testified to-day. Seth Ramsay of New Britain, roommate of Andrews, swore he never saw rats about the home and never knew of Mrs. Gilligan having arsenic around. He described Andrews' last meal, saying the food for each inmate was brought in and placed on the table on separate dishes, all except the milk, sugar and bread. He termed Andrews a "fair eater," he always ate all there was to eat.

The other former inmate who testified was Leon G. Gowdy, seventy-one, now at the Hartford City Hospital. From his testimony and letters and telegrams produced the State sought to show that as soon as Mrs. Gilligan had arranged life contracts at $500 each with Gowdy and his wife, Alice, who died suddenly in the home, and had acquiesced in their demand for the room occupied by Andrews and Ramsay, she put Andrews away on May 20, 1914, and then on May 31, 1914, and successive days until June 9, 1914, wrote and telegraphed the Gowdys to hurry to the home, and especially to send the $1,000, for which she had immediate use.

Capt. Hurley, whose cross-examination will be resumed to-morrow, admitted putting Mrs. Gilligan through the third degree. It developed also that last November, while she was under alienists' observation and not permitted to talk with reporters, Hurley tried unsuccessfully to make her talk in the Hartford County Jail.

Import Duty does nothing for a cigarette

Not a thing—except make the cigarette cost more than it should. Because the value or taste of a cigarette doesn't depend on the Import Duty on the tobacco.

That's why Piedmonts, with all their taste-goodness, can afford to give you better quality than cigarettes which have to take care of the cost of Import Duty on the tobacco.

Besides, VIRGINIA TOBACCO is the only tobacco that has character—that up-and-doing "sparkle" that makes a cigarette a cigarette. Just say "a package of Piedmonts, please."
